HISTORICAL NOTE

At the time of its organization in western Nebraska, Keith County lay south of unorganized territory of the state and its western boundary stretched to the Colorado border. The county was organized May 3, 1873, by local stockmen. For judicial, revenue and election purposes, the county had been attached to Lincoln County prior to organization. Today the county is bordered on the south by Perkins County, on the West by Deuel, on the east by Lincoln County, and by Garden, Arthur and McPherson counties on the north.

Keith County was populated by stockmen and cattle at the time of organization. The climate is dry and raising crops was almost impossible without irrigation. Because of the poor climate conditions, the population remained sparse. By 1877 there were only three precincts, Alkali (later Paxton), Ogallala, and Brule. A fourth precinct was added in 1884. The population that year was sixty-three. The next year four more precincts were established. Peak population was recorded in 1980 at 9,365.

Trailing cattle to Ogallala, the county seat, from Texas began in 1867. From 1867 to 1895, 98,250,000 cattle moved from that state to northern markets. Ogallala was a main shipping point for these cattle and a main supply point for the area. The town lied on the main route of the Union Pacific Railroad which traversed the county while building the main track in 1867. The town was a station on the line of the road, and the railroad was responsible for advertising and populating the area in later years.

Ogallala was incorporated as a village November 25, 1884. It had been the only town in the county at the time of organization and was made the county seat in 1873. It is now a popular tourist stop on the route of the interstate through Nebraska. It features a western main street and old Boot Hill Cemetery.

The first courthouse in Ogallala was a residential home that had been moved from Brule in 1873. The jail was constructed as a separate building in 1875. A new courthouse was constructed in 1888. This courthouse has since been replaced by a new courthouse constructed in 1963. The first term of the District Court took place in April of 1878. The first schoolhouse was frame building in Ogallala. In 1887 a four-room brick structure was erected. A new school was built in 1910.

The county was named in honor of Morrill Case Keith, a prominent cattle man and capitalist of North Platte until he died in 1899. Mr. Keith was the grandfather of later governor Keith Neville, who served in that office, 1917-1919.

Lake McConaughy, a popular resort in Nebraska is located in the area. It was created by the construction of Kingsley Dam in the 1930s.
